ABOUT

Minutes from downtown Nashville, the Wedgewood/Houston neighborhood is rich with art and music culture.

A long time home to many artist studios in the city, there are also many venues to view art. From the artist run galleries at 427 Chestnut St to the commercial galleries around the corner.

There is a wealth of music history in the neighborhood too! United Record Pressing has been pressing vinyl records in Wedgewood/Houston since 1962 (including the first US Beatles 7"). Several popular rock bands have their recording studios in the neighborhood, not to mention the live music that can be heard on any given night at The Basement.

The DIY mentality is alive and well in Wedgewood/Houston. Take classes at Fort Houston or become a member and have access to their wood shop, print shop, bike shop, and photography studio.

The first Saturday of each month come to Wedgewood/Houston for an art/music walk, beginning at 5:30. Follow the map opposite for the full experience.
